

4 Candidates Beat Deadline in Contest For Arlington Board

STATINTL

5 Now in Field
For Nomination
On Wednesday

By Connie Feeley
Staff Reporter

Four persons filed just under the deadline at 6 p. m. yesterday for nomination on the Arlingtonians-for-a-Better-County ticket for two seats on the five-member Arlington County Board.

In all five have formally filed for the nominations to be decided at the ABC convention at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Wakefield High School. The election is in November.

Filing yesterday were:

M. Gregory Carbone, a veterinarian; Mrs. Emory N. Hackman, vice president of the Northern Virginia Regional Park authority; William G. Raleigh, managing editor of the Atomic Industry Reporter, and Thomas W. Richards, an intelligence analyst.

Ray C. Wadlow, a luggage salesman, announced two days ago that he would seek the nomination.

The two seats up for election are held by Dr. Lucas H. Blevins and Ernest D. Wilt. Blevins has announced he is seeking re-election as a Democrat. If Wilt decides to run again, he is all but assured of endorsement by the ABC at its convention.

In that event ABC would nominate one other candidate from the list of five to oppose Blevins. But if Wilt stays out of the race, ABC would nominate two candidates.

Ray Wadlow M. G. Carbone T. W. Richards W. G. Raleigh

seek Arlington Board nomination from ABC

waiting for Wilt's decision. Arlington Del. William L. Winston has told County leaders he will not run against Wilt, but may join Blevins as a Democratic candidate if Wilt stays off the ticket.

Carbone, 38, of 3306 N. Peary st., is head of the Carbone Animal Hospital in Arlington. Born in New York, he holds a bachelor's degree in biology from the City College of New York and a doctorate in veterinary medicine from Middlesex University, Waltham, Mass.

He served with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in its overseas livestock program prior to beginning his practice in Arlington in 1946. The father of four children, he has been active in ABC at the precinct level.

Mrs. Hackman, of 3104 N. Inglewood st., holds a law degree from American University. She has lived in the county since 1949 and has been active in parent-teacher association activities and civic affairs.

Former publisher of the Arlington Citizen, a weekly which suspended publication three years ago, she is now a public affairs columnist for the Northern Virginia Sun. As vice president of the Regional Park Authority, she has been stumping for more park and recreation space for area residents.

Raleigh, 44, of 1408 N. Buchanan st., has lived in Arlington since 1940. A graduate of Princeton University, he is a former reporter and copy editor for Syracuse, N. Y., newspapers. He is managing editor of the Atomic Industry Reporter of the Bureau of National Affairs.

During World War II, he served as an Army private and rose to the rank of captain in the Corps of Engineers during overseas tours. He is now a major in the Army Reserve with the 2420th Engineer Replacement Center in Alexandria.

Richards, 33, of 2653 N. Richmond st., is an intelligence analyst with the Broadview Research Corp. in Washington, a private firm doing intelligence research for the Government.

Born in Cumberland, Md., he has been a resident of Arlington since 1954. He holds a master's degree in history from the University of Maryland.

A former history teacher at Greenbelt High School in Maryland, he served for nine years with Federal intelligence agencies before taking his present job with Broadview. He was chairman of ABC's Precinct Organization Committee last year.

Wadlow, 47, of 2243 N. Madison st., is a former president of Overlee Knolls Community Association and an active ABC precinct worker.

Mrs. Hackman